What's the fastest/cleanest way of doing this? I was thinking about using `JSON.parse(JSON.stringify(myObject))`;, but I'm not sure if this is the "right" way to go about it. I'm fairly new to Javascript, so I apologize if this isn't quite the right question. A: If you want to preserve the property names and structure of the original, do this: `var newObj = {}; for(var property in originalObj) { newObj[property] = originalObj[property]; }` If you want to preserve the property names but copy the objects themselves, you should just be able to use `copy`: `var newObj = {}; for(var property in originalObj) { newObj[property] = originalObj[property].copy(); }` This will copy every single property of the object - if you only need to copy a small number of properties, you can probably clean this up a bit by making an object of objects: `var newObj = {}; for(var property in originalObj) { newObj[property] = {}; for(var prop in originalObj[property]) { newObj[property][prop] = originalObj[property][prop]; } }` Q: Finding a formula for a cut of the hypercube Let Q_n denote the cut formed by an orthogonal projection of the unit hypercube $[0,1]^n$ to the hyperplane $x_1 + x_2 + \dots + x_n = 1$
