The equation “In a democracy, you get what you vote for” is often used to discourage or dismiss the idea of voting in a referendum that would grant same-sex couples the right to marry, especially in more socially conservative states. It has often been true and a valid criticism of our voting system. A constitutional amendment that was the result of a public vote became law because of an amendment that had passed earlier. It is almost guaranteed to be reworded to get the necessary 60%+ vote of both houses of the US Congress and the approval of three-quarters of the state legislatures and the approval of the approval of three-quarters of the states of the union (38 out of 50) to be adopted into law, thus becoming a constitutional amendment. On the other hand,
