Chronos: Before the Ashes is a sci-fi horror adventure game set in a dystopian future where humans live in a slave state and time is measured and controlled by robotic machines called "timekeepers" (a riff of Deep Blue, the AI who beat Gary Kasparov at chess, a theme that ties into the root of our game's name). The player takes on the role of Niccolò, the boy scout from the game's story line. The player encounters characters with divergent backgrounds, from a timekeeper in a laboratory to a femme fatale who plans to overthrow the state with her followers. The game's atmosphere is subtle, and challenges the player's perception of the world around him. It tells you to trust your instincts and act as if the state is not currently aware of your movements. What's new:

Chronos: Before the Ashes Soundtrack is a soundtrack composed by David Hirschfelder to the English drama film Chronos released in 2001. The film stars Daniel Craig and Liam Neeson and bears a similarity to The Usual Suspects in its story line. It was released on January 26, 2001. The soundtrack begins with composer David Hirschfelder's first piece of music for the film. Whilst the world of Chronos seems to be at a standstill, William Wilson (Liam Neeson) seizes the opportunity to make his debut as a collector of rare books. Over the course of his career, he purchases rare books written by famous authors, including Charles Dickens and H.G. Wells. The film tracks the story of an aspiring and successful collector's own genesis by assigning a prominent theme to the debut novel by each significant author. In Chronos, the story is told in flashbacks, with each book serving as an introduction to the story of its author in turn. Using musically equivalent titles, the music of each author reflects the themes of the novel within the narration. The soundtrack contains original music performed by an orchestra of 29 musicians and additional layers of sampling and digital effects performed by David Hirschfelder. Production background Chronos was written by Jim Whitaker and Steve Shill. Filmed in Copenhagen (Denmark) and Barcelona (Spain) in 2000, it was produced by Roger Birnbaum, Babak Anvari and David Nutter, and was distributed in the US by Lions Gate Films.
