Last week we talked about what a growth mindset is and explained that a growth mindset is very different than a fixed mindset. The problem with a fixed mindset is that it cannot be changed. We'll talk about that more later this week. In this article we're going to talk about how you can make this mindset work for you as a learner and the benefits of doing so. Here are a few things you can do today to make a growth mindset work for you: 1) Use a Game-Based Learning system Being a learner is very different than being a fixed mindset individual. When an individual is fixed mindset, the system that they are in doesn't help them develop the mindset that they need to develop. Learning a language, a skill, mathematics, cooking, or whatever you may want to develop a habit of is much more than learning it once or twice. It takes practice and repetition. So this is where game-based learning systems come in. These are systems that are designed to help you play games. If you are the type of learner that is always
