We see several scenes with the legendary Super Saiyan Red, who claims to have killed 108 warriors who came after him. He is then asked about who is the strongest person, with him simply saying that the people who came after him are not as strong. Everyone says that it is not about strength, but rather work ethic. Super Saiyan Red finally says that Goku is the strongest, as he has the most power. Vegeta replies that he says that because he could kill 108, that he is the strongest. Red then goes on to say that Goku has never killed anyone. Just then, the Emperor sits down and asks if there is anyone who wants to kill someone else. Goku says that he would like to. We are introduced to Roshi and his student, Yamcha, who apparently needs help with something. He asks them if they need someone to teach a class, as there are 3,000 students in Roshi's class. Vegeta says that there are enough teachers, and Yamcha says that it is Goku who should be teaching. Yamcha and Roshi then point to Goku as he is approaching them. Roshi then says that the number one spot is reserved for Goku, and he is in training to be "real men". Goku says that he cannot teach, and neither can he fight, to which the teacher retorts that Goku has everything but work ethic. The two seem to start fighting again, but this time, the fight is actually good. As the two Saiyans continue to fight, their powers increase rapidly, until finally, Goku manages to knock out Vegeta. Goku defeats Vegeta with one hit and leaves for now. Vegeta's furious rants come to an abrupt halt as he watches Goku in awe and breathes deeply as he tries to regain his strength. Meanwhile, Majin Buu finally appears. Though Goku is now under Satan's control, Vegeta has regained his sense of duty and takes control of the situation.
