parents are invited to use these podcasts to help their children learn english. if they listen to the podcasts, they will understand what the children are saying and can ask questions if they have any questions about what they heard. if you have a few questions about special education in pre-k (or about the program in general), please ask the teacher. if you have more questions, please talk to your child's teacher about this. your child's teacher will tell you what you need to know. if you have no idea what you should be asking the teacher, don't worry; there are plenty of teachers who are happy to help. if you have no idea where your child's pre-k school is, please ask your child's teacher. a parent can sometimes be able to get help from the child's teacher with this question. if you have no idea where your child's pre-k school is, try asking the child's teacher. children often know more than you do about the pre-k programs in their area, especially if they attend multiple classes there or if they move there. if your child is a child with a disability (or if you think your child may have a disability), talk to your child's teacher and/or your child's iep team about services. if you think your child is eligible for services, a worker from the division of special education will talk to your child's teacher and/or your child's iep team to discuss your child's needs.

they may want to set up an individualized education plan (iep) and/or related services. pre-k staff may also refer your child to a public school that serves students with similar needs, or they may refer your child to a special education program that is located at a pre-k center or a nyceec. a pre-k teacher, or your child's iep team, may make a referral to your child's public school or to the community-based special education program. 5ec8ef588b
